The Lee and Bessie Wells home at 4466 Second St., Pleasanton, is one of the top ten old structures in terms of historical importance, age and integrity of the structure and the character of its architecture, according to a list compiled by the Amador - Livermore Valley Historical Society. The city council was asked a few months ago to implement its historical overlay district in an effort to preserve old buildings like the Wells home. (Times Photo by Mike Macor)

Careful approach to history

PLEASANTON — Slow investigation of what the community wants in preserving historic buildings appears to be the city council's attitude about implementing the preservation ordinance on the books since 1972.

The ordinance slept for four years until the controversy over the moving of the Presbyterian Church from its traditional site at Second and Neal streets to its educational building site on Mirador Drive. Then opponents of the move, notably former Mayor Robert Pearson who helped passed the ordinance in 1972, called for implementation of the ordinance. Appointment of a five member historical overlay district commission is required before the ordinance can be implemented.

Councilman Frank Brandes told The Times yesterday he is willing to bring up the item to the city council soon because he thinks it should be debated pro and con.

"It's worth preserving some old historical buildings in town," said Brandes. "If we don't do it, there won't be any old buildings left in town. I think we should study the ordinance, see what it means and how it will be applied."

"I have some problems with it, though. We didn't invoke it for the move of the Presbyterian Church. Maybe we set a bad precedent with that. If we didn't invoke it then, maybe we can't in the future."

Mayor Robert Philcox said he is not ready to implement the ordinance or appoint the committee.

Most of the properties mentioned are business properties and Philcox wants to get feedback from merchants and property owners downtown about how they think the ordinance will affect them.

The mayor also wants to see what residents in the affected neighborhoods think. For example, if the church had been required to stay in the neighborhood of Second and Neal streets, would owners of old homes there also want to be in the historical overlay district. That would mean they couldn't touch their property either and how would they like that, asked Philcox.

The Amador - Livermore Valley Historical Society recently gave the city council a list of 10 old structures in the city which it felt merited saving and preservation. The buildings were listed in their order of importance with the following criteria: historical importance of the structure, building's age, integrity of the building (still original, same location), public use (its importance to all people) and the character and type of the architecture and type of construction.

The group rated the Kottinger Adobe Barn, 200 Ray Street St., as the most important historical structure. The society is working with the city council and Congressman Pete Stark to secure federal funds for its restoration.

Listed second was the Presbyterian Church, built in 1876. The Pleasanton Hotel was third and although much of it has been added in later years, small parts of the building date back to the year of construction in 1852.

Other buildings in order of rank include the Furniture on Main building at Neal and Main Streets (1895), the Shoe Stable (Johnson Building, 1896), Gale and Amaral's office building, 52 W. Neal St. (circa 1885), Kolln Hardware, 600 Main St. (1890), Joshua Neal Home, 431 Neal St. (1866), Lee and Bessie Wells home, 4466 Second St. (1860's), and the Rathbone House (Thomas Nerton home), 462 St. Mary St. (1862).

Amador Valley trustees discuss need for communications between schools

"How much articulation are we doing between district schools in the same subject area?"

What commenced as a fairly routine item on the Amador Valley Joint High School District board agenda Tuesday soon developed into a discussion of practices and results at the district's campuses.

Asked by trustee Jack Delaney of Neil Sweeney, assistant superintendent for instructional services, the question literally opened a "pandora's box" of related subjects.

Sweeney and a Graduation Task Force have been exploring the various subject areas at elementary and secondary levels, conducting a seemingly endless number of meetings to plot how math (for example) is taught, what minimum standards should be for graduation and what materials are used.

But Delaney was more concerned with the "variables," as Amador principal Ralph Laird later termed it.

For example, would a student taking first-year German, having access to the same materials, receive as good a foundation in the language as a student at another district school?

Laird said the variables—teacher, student and textbook—were the key items in this horizontal articulation exercise.

Though left unsaid in specific words, it became apparent to trustees and administrators at the board meeting that identical results for a given subject (language, math, sciences, etc.) would depend not only on the student's capacity to learn but the precise teaching methods.

Sweeney assured Delaney horizontal articulation was a constant in the district.

Action spurring the discussion was Sweeney's presentation of course and textbook matrix to Newlin and the board.

Attached to the brief review of policy was a list of books, in various subject areas, that will be placed at various district schools.

Part of district policy, under "selection tools and procedures," states: Placement of books in the school that do not appear on acceptable general reading lists, i.e., American Library Association, Library Journal, National Council of Teachers of English, etc., shall only be made including the school principal.

In other business Tuesday, Foothill High's athletic boosters presented a check for $3,500 to the district but are still short of their portion of funding for football field lights.

Cost of the lighting project, including both district and booster participation, is $48,283. A bid by Gould Electric for the lights was approved by trustees.

Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services, said a total of $89,000 would be forthcoming from the community services tax, an increase of $26,000 from last year. $50,000 of this amount has been assigned to planning the bleachers - lighting project.

A boosters spokesman said the total plan for the Foothill athletic complex includes six tennis courts, fencing, landscaping, and acquisition of enough crushed rock to build an excellent track.

Trustees also received a California School Employees Association salary and fringe benefit proposal—actually a standard form contract—as prescribed under Senate Bill 160.

The board also adopted a resolution calling for fiscal support of the School Attendance Review Board and reviewed an agreement with the chief project representative for the Amador Valley High library addition.

School district budget rising $700,000

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Unified School District will be almost $700,000 richer this year than previously expected, with three quarters of the new money going for staff raises.

That would give teachers and support personnel 3 to 4 per cent increases and would leave the district with more than half a million in the bank after all their bills are paid for the year.

The new figures were presented to Motorists will negotiate this turn onto Sycamore Road from a left turn lane, eliminating bottlenecks and dangerous passing procedures on Sunol Boulevard.

End of a long siege

PLEASANTON — A dangerous traffic bottleneck on this city's south side is finally going to be removed.

The confluence of Sunol Boulevard and Sycamore Road has been the target of local complaints, and a persistent Pleasanton Times' campaign, for some 10 years. The problem is that south-bound traffic that seeks to turn left from Sunol Boulevard onto Sycamore Road presented a real danger to other traffic that had to share that narrow two-lane stretch.

The space for widening the boulevard to three lanes at that intersection was always available. But the city and the county could never find the money and the motivation to complete the project.

One of the problems was that the price for some 100 feet of "third lane" construction was doubled from the original $20,000 estimate when engineers figured in the extra base road base needed to take the heavy pounding from gravel trucks, which also use that route.

The Alisal Improvement Club, representing residents along Sycamore and Happy Valley roads, had petitioned several times over the years for a left-turn lane off of Sunol Boulevard to "erase a very dangerous situation."

Alameda County's director of public works and road commissioner, Herb Crowle, has finally agreed. This week he submitted plans to the board of supervisors for a left-turn lane off of Sunol Boulevard at Sycamore Road.

The total cost is pegged at $45,000. City of Pleasanton, which shares responsibility in that area, will pay $10,000 of that cost. The work should start in October, be completed by late November.

Pleasanton board asks new look at bus routes

PLEASANTON — The relative handful of sixth through eighth graders in West Del Prado and Vintage Hills who'll be hoofing it next school year will get some official sympathy, if not a ticket back on board district buses.

Pleasanton School District board members last night directed staff to prepare a report in lieu of a possible meeting with parents of sixth-eighth graders in those areas.

Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services, said a few students in the West Del Prado and Vintage Hills areas may now be faced with walking in excess of 2 and 1/2 miles, the maximum walking distance for Amador High School District students.

The discussion emanated from remarks on the 1976-77 budget, which does not include funds for sixth through eighth grade busing, maintenance staff uniforms, towels and towels service, overstaffing of 5 1/2 fulltime equivalent teachers, and reduced cost of testing programs.

Deletion of middle grade busing sliced $30,000 from the budget, or three buses. The latter will now be used in transporting regional occupational program students.

Comments from the small audience, on the $7,175,441 budget, were directed at walking distances, the regular school year Outdoor Education Program, and approved ways of advancing on the salary schedule.

The latter comment referred to what the speaker claimed were "laughable" ways of gaining credits such as vacation trips.

Board President Al Dutchover defended processes for advancement, stating "we have a fairly reasonable policy for advancement on the salary schedule."

The $7.1 million budget is $517,000 above the tentative figure and $580,000 over the actual 1975-76 amount.

Thanks to a "no loss" provision in the new system, the additional $140,000 will be given to the district to be used in the regular program.

The other new money is $160,667 in State Teachers Retirement System (STRS) relief. The state will now be funding what Livermore used to pay into the retirement fund for teachers.

Juvenile's million dollar lawsuit

PLEASANTON — The city and its police department and two officers are being sued for $1.1 million for personal injuries allegedly resulting from an arrest October 25, 1975.

The arrest was a done by Officers Fred Crabtree and William Yates and according to the complaint filed by Hayward attorney Fred McDonald, the officers struck and pushed a juvenile into a window in the course of the arrest.

The incident occurred downtown sometime after dark, according to a police source. Another young person, not involved in this suit, also was arrested during the commission of the crime.

The juvenile "suffered extreme and severe mental anguish and physical pain and has been injured in mind and body, sustaining severe emotional trauma, resulting in permanent mental injury," said the complaint filed by McDonald.

He also "sustained a severe cut and laceration over his left eye," said the attorney. The plaintiff is asking $100,000 in damages for the injuries.

He is also asking $1 million in exemplary and punitive damages, attorney's fees, and medical and related expenses, according to proof.

The alleged injury from the officers, which the attorney called "wrongful and malicious acts", required the plaintiff to spend money for medical treatment and medicine, costs which will be added to the complaint when they are known fully, said the lawyer.

Assistant City Attorney Harvey Levine said yesterday that the complaint has been referred to the city's insurance carrier, which will deal with it.

Our own desert places

Robert Frost wrote favorably about his own desert places, but Highland Oaks residents don't like their desert spaces along Foothill Road. Residents complained about the bare planter strips to the city council Monday night at the first of a series of town hall meetings to be given in local neighborhoods. The tract's developer didn't install a sprinkler system and the city doesn't have enough personnel to water the area, so the planter has remained this way for approximately four years since the cold winter which killed most of the iceplant. The city staff promised to work out something with residents soon.

Elderly bilked in roof con

PLEASANTON — At least two and possibly four elderly residents have apparently been victimized by men charging $200 and up for spraying a protective coating on home roofs that allegedly does little good, police reported yesterday.

Detective Patricia Nordin said that a woman on Pleasanton Avenue paid $300 for application of the "aluminum asphalt paint" to the roof of her home.

The next day, a Division Street resident told police that some men got on his roof and began the work without his permission. When they finished less than a half hour later, they handed him a bill for $325, which he paid in cash.

Both incidents occurred more than two weeks ago, but were not uncovered until yesterday.

Nordin says the suspects typically approach a resident, usually elderly, advise him that his roof is bad, and attempt to sell him a coating application that is "guaranteed" to prevent leaks, seal the roof from weather, and extend the life of the roof.

Nordin says the suspects are operating illegally in any case, because they failed to first secure a solicitor's license.

After victims' statements are compiled, the consumer fraud division of the county district attorney's office will send out a roofing expert to testify on the coating's effectiveness. His findings will be used in the event a criminal case is brought to court.

If you are approached by persons offering roofing repairs, it is advised that you check with local police agencies before signing any contracts.

City seeks bundle in fines

LIVERMORE — The City of Livermore is moving to correct an oversight that may add as much as $2,000 a month to the city's coffers. City Manager Bill Parness disclosed this week that the city is entitled to 50 per cent of the fines levied on overweight trucks at the weighing station on North Front Road and Interstate 580.

The weighing station is within the city limits and the city has been entitled to collect half the fines levied since the city acquired the property in June 1974.

That could be as much as $50,000, figured on an average of $2,000 per month.

Alameda County has assured the city that it will receive 50 per cent of all fines levied from Aug. 1, 1976.

But to collect on its monies past due, the city will have to file a claim with the county.

Livermore Finance Director George Nolan said it is "certainly good news if the city does receive that amount of money," and noted it would have a "net beneficial effect on city finances."

He explained that there are restrictions on how the truck overweight fines can be used. The monies must be put toward traffic safety.

Nolan said that the funds could be put toward the city's lighting and street striping, a program now funded by traffic fines and a transfer from the city's general fund.

By transferring the weigh station monies to the traffic safety fund, some general fund monies could be freed for other municipal use.

Rape attempt charge for Fremont suspect

LIVERMORE — A Fremont man was arraigned in Livermore Municipal Court yesterday on charges of attempting to rape a Pleasanton woman in the driveway of her Beech Court home July 28.

Charles William Cole, 35, was arraigned in Judge John A. Lewis' court yesterday on charges of assault with intent to commit rape, and prior offense charges of oral sex perversion and vehicular manslaughter.

On July 28, a Pleasanton woman parking her car in the driveway of her Beech Court home was jumped by a man hiding in the back seat of her car. The woman ran screaming from the car, and the suspect fled on foot.

Pleasanton Police, with the help of local residents, investigated and narrowed their search to Cole. An arrest warrant was issued, and Cole surrendered to South Lake Tahoe City Police Monday.

Tuesday, Cole was transported back to Pleasanton by Det. Sgt. Ed Valin and Det. Bill Yates, who conducted the investigation.

The suspect remains in custody pending a court hearing tomorrow at 1:30 p.m.

Pipeline price tag needed

PLEASANTON — Representatives to the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) meet tonight in attempts to determine a local cost figure for the proposed "super-sewer" pipeline that valley residents will vote on in the Nov. 2 general election.

LAVWMA meets in the Pleasanton Justice Court, 30 West Angela Ct. tonight beginning at 5:30. A joint business/dinner meeting between LAVWMA and the Zone 7 Water board will follow at the Pleasanton Hotel beginning at approximately 6:30 p.m.

After the Water Quality Control Board determined that sewage dumped into Alameda Creek from the valley was polluting Fremont water supplies, they ordered local officials to find an alternative method of sewage disposal.

LAVWMA was formed in May, 1974 to coordinate valley sewage disposal efforts. The board is made up of representatives from Livermore, Pleasanton and the Valley Community Services District.

A $25 million pipeline to carry sewage from the valley to San Francisco Bay has been proposed. Federal and state monies would pay the bulk of the pipeline, with the local share (to be paid by valley taxpayers) estimated at between $5.5 and $9.5 million.

LAVWMA members have until Aug. 20 to decide exact size, cost and ballot measure wording on the pipeline. At that time, they must submit those figures to the county for ballot printing.

If the measure is defeated, fines of up to $6,000 a day could be imposed until the sewage problem is solved. LAVWMA officials must also decide what contingency measures should be taken if the pipeline is disapproved.

In addition to the 15.72 million gallon per day (mgd) residential pipeline, an extra 4 mgd capacity solely for industrial users in Pleasanton and Livermore only will be on those two cities' ballots. LAVWMA has requested a grant from the State Water Resources Control Board for funding of that extra capacity.

Club officer dared to do the job

By JEAN McKENNA

You're the newest member of the club, and eager to impress the other members with your sincere interest and willingness to make a contribution.

Suddenly you are "volunteered" as the club's recording secretary, publicity chairperson or historian. Should you be dismayed or flattered by this vote of confidence in your ability to write a beautiful script in the record book, type up a neat press release or take pictures without cutting off the heads?

Veteran members give you a knowing look, "You poor thing. You don't know what you're getting into."

So, as you pick up your pen, take your typewriter out of mothballs, or sling a camera over your shoulder, you can take one of two attitudes — (1) You can be mysteriously struck by a rare illness every third Tuesday when the club meets, take your phone off the hook when the newspaper does not print your notice, and count the days until your term expires. (2) You can try to do something ORIGINAL, and enjoy a moment of triumph when your project captures all the awards and those know-it-alls are standing in the corner with their mouths wide open.

Dory Gouge of San Ramon, a new member of the Alameda County Legal Secretaries Association, chose No. 2 route when she was appointed club historian. Now she has an incredible 50-pound, beautifully bound history book sporting a national blue ribbon to show for her 435 days of work!

"I'll never do it again," she vows, with an unmistakable gleam of pride in her eye. She about her achievement at first, Dory opens up with an account of the details of the project.

"I changed my theme for the book about four or five times, and then decided on an International Women's Year theme which would be of a broader interest than just club activities," she explains. "I had to be everywhere at once to take pictures of all events, get everyone's name correctly. I even attended lectures on International Women's Year to have a better idea of what it was all about."

The book contains 500 photographs, with each identified with typeset information. A friend was commissioned to do caricature sketches of each of the club officers, and Dory created the stained-glass art for the book's cover. The president's picture is adorned with a plastic overlay. Lace, felt, satin and other trims are artistically employed to carry the theme throughout the 196-page book.

"I imagine the club spent about $325 on the book," she declares. "I took two weeks vacation to complete it. The whole project was kept secret until it was finished."

After winning a first prize at the state level, the history book took Dory and six other members to Denver for the national contest where its extravagant thoroughness and color captured the judges' favor.

"It was a ego-boosting experience," confesses Dory who has been elected club treasurer for next year. Now about that club ledger...

Fresh vegetables are vitamin rich

Your neighbor has just delivered a prize collection of homegrown cauliflower, green peppers, turnips and assorted greens. Grandmother is on her way over with this week's harvest of cherry tomatoes and green onions. And your youngsters have spent the summer nurturing a high-yield carrot, radish and zucchini patch.

The common reaction to the situation might be termed the I-cannot-use-another-fresh-vegetable syndrome.

Looking at the nutritional side of the story and trying one of the simplest serving suggestions for vegetables will make it easy to be delighted with all you're receiving.

One serving of broccoli, carrots, pumpkin, spinach, sweet potatoes or winter squash provides half or more of the U.S. Recommended Dietary Allowances for Vitamin A as established by the National Academy of Sciences.

Vegetables that provide half or more of the recommended allowance for Vitamin C are brussels sprouts, cabbage, zucchini and other summer squash, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, spinach, rutabaga, radishes, green pepper, onions and cauliflower.

So all the people who share the season's garden bounty with you are looking after your health, perhaps without even knowing it. And they're saving you the expense and time of shopping for the pick of the crop in a supermarket.

Raw is the easiest of all ways to serve fresh vegetables. Using them as between meal foods means that snacks will contribute to each day's vegetable quota. And since bright colors, crunchiness and finger-style eating appeal to children, offering raw vegetables often encourages kids to eat more of them.

Most vegetables just need to be washed off, then trimmed or cut into strips and bite-size pieces. Leave the skins attached to zucchini for color. To use leafy vegetables, roll them up with thin slices of meat and cheese and secure with wooden picks.

Doing something special with produce from your own garden plot will bring proud grins from the junior gardeners who did the work. Just make sure they, too understand that there's more to vegetables than the fun of watching them grow. Vegetables are vitamins in disguise.

Leah Hendricks, a weaver of 20 years, and her husband, Charles, an artist in clay, will host a joint exhibit of their work at the Livermore Art Association Gallery in August.

Hendricks team up for exhibit

Leah and Charles Hendricks of the Livermore Art Association will be the featured artists this month at the association's gallery located at the Carnegie Building in Livermore.

The public is invited to a gallery open house to meet the artists in person Sunday, Aug. 8 from 2 to 4 p.m. The show is of weaving and pottery.

Leah's weaving experience started 20 years ago when she took a course from Virla Burrell at the University of Utah as part of requirements for her college major of home economics. She has since studied with such noted weavers as Glen Kufman and Alma Leach at the Folk Art Museum in Santa Fe, N.M., Malin Selander in Boston, Mass., Elsa Regginsteiner, Joan Austin, Florence Bailar and Lulu Smith in Illinois.

Since coming to California two years ago, Leah has been a student at Fiberworks in Berkeley and the De Young Museum in San Francisco.

Mrs. Hendricks has received show awards from the Golden Needle in Oakland and Pleasanton Art League in 1975, and several awards while a resident of Illinois. She is an active member of the Golden Gate Weavers Guild of Berkeley and the Wayside Weavers of Livermore.

Leah was chairman of Livermore's Festival '75 adult art show. Charles' interest in pottery began with a 1967 adult education course. He continued his study in pottery when he took an extension class from the University of Illinois with Don Pilcher. He and Don collaborated on an article, "Polution Effects of Salt Glazing," which was published by the American Craftsman's Council and reprinted by a Canadian crafts magazine.

His personal awards include a first prize in the Regional Town and Country Art Show sponsored by the U of I extension service. Also first and second prizes in the Country Town and Country Art Show in 1971.

Hendricks received his Ph.D. in physics from the University of Utah, and was a professor of electrical and nuclear engineering at the University of Illinois for 20 years. For the past two years, he has been at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory working in laser target fabrication.

For further information regarding the gallery calendar of events, call 447-9927 during its regular hours, Thursday through Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mr. Broadway

The inimitable George M. Cohan (Paul Devore), known as 'Mr. Broadway' in his heyday, coaches his Broadway star (Dena Nicolaisen) in a sentimental scene from the Pleasanton Playhouse production of 'George M' coming to the Alameda County Fairgrounds Amphitheater Aug. 13-14, 19-21. See members of the 'George M' cast featured in television spots to be aired Sunday, Aug. 8 at noon — on Channel Two with Betty Ann Bruno and on Channel 4 with Terry Lowry. Tickets to the show in the tradition of American Vaudeville are available through the Pleasanton Recreation Department at 846-3202. Senior Citizen Night is Aug. 19 with tickets sold to senior citizens at $1 per person. General admission is $3 for adults and $2 for students.

'Guys and Dolls' is coming soon

Second annual production of the Livermore Musical Theater, entirely student-run during the summer, will be "Guys and Dolls" to be staged Aug. 11, 12 and 13.

The production is underwritten by the Livermore Cultural Arts Council and the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District.

Tickets to the popular musical, a 1950 Broadway hit, may be ordered at 447-5091, with admission being $1.50 for adults and $1 for students. The curtain rises each night at 8:15 p.m. at the Granada High School Little Theatre.

Sue Cupps is director of the production, with musical direction by Bill Doggett, and choreography by Dan Springer and Robin Tinder. Valerie Doggett is the producer.

Among the better known musical selections from the play are "A Bushel and A Peck," and "I've Never Been in Love Before."

It was cool music on a cool evening at the Concord Pavilion.

As the crowd settled in for one of the final concerts in the Concord Summer Jazz Festival the mood was as relaxed and casual as only Pavilion concerts can be. The inevitable distractions of latecomers finding their seats in the dark, of kids rolling in the green turf or picnickers pouring that last cup of coffee merged with the sophisticated sound of the L.A. Four to become the rhythm of life.

It was the most natural and acceptable thing to tap a foot or bob a head in that rhythm as the classy quartet (Shelley Manne, Bud Shank, Laurindo Almeida and Ray Brown) came across the fabulous Pavilion sound system crisp and clear. Jazz is pure pleasure when you can cast aside your inhibitions and share a smile of appreciation with your neighbor after a tingling, soulful bass solo (Ray Brown).

The L.A. Four, comprised of the very top jazz musicians, transcended a polished professionalism to reach what seemed the essence of melody and rhythm. A solid sequence of easy-listening, mainstream jazz was put out by the Plas Johnson Sextet (including Ray Brown again and Guitarist Herb Ellis). But the evening was capped with the sensitive and amazing pyrotechnics of the Great Guitars — Charlie Byrd, Herb Ellis and Barney Kessel.

The greatest test of a concert place is a classical guitar solo with all its subtleties at the hand of a master. The Villa Lobos composition by Charlie Byrd was rendered and amplified with a perfection that would please the most discriminating purist.

The Concord Summer Jazz Festival, which grows in prestige with each year, is over. Yet the beat goes on at the top professional entertainment center in the Eastbay.

Look for David Crosby and Graham Nash (of Crosby, Stills and Nash fame) tomorrow night, Aug. 6, followed by a Bill Graham rock production Saturday, Aug. 7 (Journey, Sons of Champlin and Earth Quake). Pop idol Neil Sedaka joins the line-up Tuesday, Aug. 10, with Country western's Charlie Rich hot on his heels Wednesday, Aug. 11. Sergio Mendes and Brasil '77 swing Sunday, Aug. 15, and Superstar Barry Manilow makes an appearance Wednesday, Aug. 18.

The Pavilion's very fine acoustical system will carry the strains of the San Francisco Symphony in a three-weekend series of classical and popular programs that include Pianist Misha Dichter in all-Beethoven (Aug. 13), and the beloved Arthur Fiedler (Aug. 27 and 28).

Tickets may be purchased in advance through the Odyssey Ticket Service in Livermore or held at the Pavilion box office by calling 798-3311. The good vibrations begin at 8 p.m. for all performances.

A full-blown cultural arts program was attempted during the recently completed Olympic Games in Montreal, one that would be coordinated with the diverse athletic programs and (hopefully) command near equal attention.

The latter was deemed ambitious from the outset and, in the final days, organizers were giving away tickets to underprivileged youth groups throughout the province of Quebec.

Such was never the case with the Games, where tickets to the popular events (thanks to television exposure in '72 and again this time) such as gymnastics, track and field and swimming were routinely sold for three or four times face value.

Between the track, basketball and boxing, we managed to squeeze in one Olympic arts program — a performance of Les Grand Ballet des Canadiens at Expo Theatre in Le Cite du Havre.

Les Canadiens originated almost 20 years ago and are best known in Eastern Canada. They rank as the number two national ballet company in Canada but are spreading their wings with each passing year.

The program viewed last week included two traditional ballet works and one produced by the Montreal company — Bawdy Variations.

Done with a backdrop of Roaring 20s decor and rinky-tink piano, the dancers recreate the humorous goings-ons at a bawdy house. The company displayed a deft flair for comedy while maintaining some semblance of ballet arabesque and attitude.

Montreal, though an old city and a pillar in the western world, has come rather late to a diverse program of cultural arts. This is being remedied with the completion of Place des Arts — two arenas for theatre, music and art.

Toronto is, perhaps, a little more advanced. While the O'Keefe Center is fairly new, the Royal Alexander has been focal point for legitimate stage presentations for decades. Billboards in front disclosed a powerful fall series headed by appearances by Sir John Gielgud and Rex Harrison.

O'Keefe and the neighboring St. Lawrence Center are downtown and a stone's throw from Lake Ontario.

Offerings during our brief stay included a Victorian-era comedy and singer John Davidson and young composer Marvin Hammlich. We opted for the latter and found Davidson doing basically the same thing he does on the Tonight show — roaming amongst the adoring young women in the audience, accepting roses and kisses on stage and acting "cutesy" between songs.

Hammlich is one of the top song writers of the generation, though just 32, a good pianist with so-so stage presence.

One last item. If you're headed to Toronto in the next few months and enjoy Middle European cuisine and fancy Austrian pastries, stop by Graf Bobby's across from O'Keefe Centre.

MARQUEE—Of Thee I Sing continues Friday and Saturday at Civic Arts Repertory in Walnut Creek. Curtain is at 8:30.... Tickets for the Shakespeare Festival in Ashland, Oregon are available through Macy's box office in San Francisco. Productions run through mid-September.

There are two reasons why you should return your partner's suit. The first one is that it tends to keep him happy. The second is that it is usually the correct play.

South won the first trick with the queen of spades over East's jack. He led the 10 of diamonds and let it ride to East's queen.

South played dummy's eight. After that it was a simple matter to play ace and another diamond and wind up with two overtricks.

It only amounted to 60 points in overtricks, since South always had nine tricks after the spade lead, but the game was match points and it meant the difference between a fair score and a bottom for the defenders.

East's play was bad. True, it would have worked if declarer held king-small or maybe ace-small of hearts but the spade return had to be better.

Ask the Jacobys
A Missouri readers wants to know why 26 high-card points produce only nine tricks at notrump while 26 points of all kinds produce 10 tricks at a suit contract.

To answer our reader from the "show-me" state, point count is an approximation and playing in the right suit usually is worth one extra trick. If you play in the wrong suit your extra tricks disappear.

PN All-Stars in Sections

CAMPBELL — Pleasanton National, which captured its first District 57 All-Star championship with a 4-2 win over Fremont American two weeks ago, continues its quest for a berth in the Little League World Series at the Section 3 tournament on the Quito Little League diamond here this evening.

The PNLL squad is tentatively scheduled to meet District 39 champion Santa Cruz in the opening game of the single-elimination tournament at 5:45 p.m.

Coach Ray Northam, assisting manager Bob Ferolito with the team, is reasonably confident heading into tonight's contest.

"I can't really compare our team to those I haven't seen," he said. "But we were the best in District 57. I also watched two San Jose teams for a couple of innings and I think we could have beaten them."

While Pleasanton National has displayed good defense and hitting, their biggest plus has been an extraordinary ability to play as a team.

"These kids all come from different teams," Northam said of the 11- and 12-year olds. "Yet they've jelled and played well together right from the start."

A simple philosophy will govern Ferolito and Northam throughout the do-or-die event.

"You have to go with your best nine and, if it's close, you've got to stay with them," Northam said. "Of course, everyone on the team is good."

That obviously includes left-handed pitcher Chris Elbert, who'll toe the rubber tonight. Elbert has an effective fast ball and possesses a modicum of control, both of which helped him gain two wins in District 57 play.

Both Elbert and catcher Dave Blanchard hit for power and proved it by slamming home runs in the south bay tournament.

Shortstop Barry Mori keys the defense, which allowed no more than three runs in any one game during the District 57 play-offs.

The rest of the starting line-up will include Dave Parker at first base, Robert Nelson at second, Tom Northam at third, Mark Kammermeier in left field, Gary Morgan in center and Trip Gotelli in right.

David Ferguson, Kerry Mueller, James Emerick, Len Minerva and Mike Madden will be on the bench with George DeCambra and Robert Edwards serving as alternates.

Tough offense gives Mutual Service win

A powerful offensive display lifted Mutual Service to a 6-2 win over Keep-Kool Radiator in a Livermore Area Recreation and Park District men's softball game Tuesday.

Clean-up hitter Fred Cariss slammed a home run, a triple and a single while Dennis Murphy and Stan Glover also drove home runs. Glenn Black singled twice while Ed Groover, Dave Toso, Dave Brown and Rich Muniz wrapped up the hitting with singles.

For the Koolers, Bob Cuesth had two hits, including a homer, while Larry Morris, George Westue and Tim Kerrigan each singled twice. Tom Morris, Donny Ott, Jim Hecarry, Ross Humphrey and Joe Vargas rapped out one hit apiece.

Rudy Olivera homered as the King's Brigade claimed a 7-3 win over Farmer's Insurance.

John Cook and Tom King each had two singles while James Brown had two one-baggers of his own. Fred Foster doubled as singles by Dave Paulus and Jim French closed out the offense.

Farmer's retaliated with a four-single outburst by Jim James, two singles by Corey Knapp and hits by Mike Gutierrez, Chuck Visser, John Bonham, Dutch Van Wey, Gary Visser and Jeff Faruado.

In the evening's other game, Livermore Station edged Kavanagh Liquors, 11-10 via a two-run seventh-inning rally.

Chabot names coach

Christiansen, 38, succeeds Gene Wellman, who stepped down as baseball mentor this past spring after building the Gladiators into a state and national community college powerhouse.

Wellman compiled a 340-120 record and gained four Golden Gate Conference championships during his 15-year career.

Christiansen was head coach at Laney College the past 11 seasons and served as athletic director for three years. He was also an assistant football coach for seven seasons.

He earned three varsity letters as a catcher at San Jose State College, graduating in 1959. He earned a Master of Arts Degree there five years later. He was a 1955 graduate of Hayward High School.

All-Stars practice basics

HAYWARD — Alameda County's All-Stars opened camp yesterday at Cal-State Hayward here in preparation for their August 14th football clash with Contra Costa's All-Stars at Diablo Valley College.

Alameda's finest went through some basic offensive drills in both the morning and afternoon practices. The gridders also did some wind sprints to help themselves get back into top shape.

Some needed it. Some didn't. "I'm in pretty good shape," said Granada running back Steve Jaeger after the morning workout was finished. "During the early summer I did some wind sprints and lifted a few weights to stay in shape."

Jaeger is one of several outstanding running backs the Alameda squad can throw at Contra Costa. Probably the most explosive back on the team is ex-Alameda High star Robbie Kahuanui. Kahuanui ran for 23 touchdowns last season and was named to the All-Northern California squad.

"Yes, Kahuanui is a very fine back," co-coach Al Vermeil of Moreau High School admitted. "However, all our players are good. We have a really fine squad here and all the players have been cooperative today."

Three other East Bay Athletic League players also participated in yesterday's drills. Quarterback John Walden and tackle Ron Freeman joined Jaeger as representatives from the Matador squad. Rich Palmer of Livermore is the other EBAL representative.

The Alameda All-Stars will be at a slight weight disadvantage against Contra Costa but may have an edge in speed and quickness.

"Personally I do not think size is really that important," Vermeil said. "I like quickness and speed in a team and I think we have that."

Alameda will operate out of the veer on offense so look for a lot of running plays.

"All of the quarterbacks we selected can run," said John Brosnan of Castro Valley, the other Alameda coach. "That's why we picked them."

Brosnan seemed very impressed with the offensive ability of the All-Stars.

"We're very explosive," he gleamed. "Our quarterbacks should be able to bust a play anytime. We also have some excellent running backs."

Getting prepared on defense may be a tougher assignment for both teams. The brief time allotted for practice gives the coaches very little chance to install a really sound defensive system. There are also other problems for the defense.

"We're restricted in the number of things we can do on defense," Brosnan admitted. "We must have a 5-2 line and we won't be allowed to stunt."

With all the advantages apparently on the offense's side the All-Star Classic could turn into a high-scoring affair.

While that may cause havoc among defensive players it's sure to delight the fans.

Matthews' HR sparks Giants

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Matthews' slammed a two-run homer in the first inning and doubled and scored in the eighth to power the San Francisco Giants over Cincinnati 4-1 Wednesday, snapping the Reds' seven-game winning streak.

Matthews' homer with two out in the first came off Gary Nolan, 10-6, who had allowed a leadoff single by Larry Herndon.

John Montefusco allowed eight hits, struck out five and walked two in gaining the victory, raising his record to 11-9. Randy Moffitt relieved in the ninth.

Cincinnati's lone run came in the third when Dan Driessen's double scored Joe Morgan.

The Reds had at least one hit in each of the first four innings off Montefusco, but only two over the last four innings against the Giants' starter.

Montefusco struck out George Foster, the National League's runs-batted-in leader, three times with runners on base. In the first inning, there were men on second and third with one out when Montefusco fanned Foster on a fastball. Driessen fled out to center, ending the threat.

Johnny Bench had two hits in the game and was 7-for-13 in the three game series.

Stones breaks record

PHILADELPHIA — High-jumper Dwight Stones took advantage of a dry surface Wednesday night to smash his own world record with a leap of 7 feet, 7 1/4 inches.

The jump came at the Philadelphia Bicentennial Meet of Champions and was just four days after Stones settled for a disappointing bronze medal in the Olympic Games at Montreal.

Stones looked sharp in the Games until a rainstorm produced puddles on the jumping surface and forced Stones to miss badly at 7-3 1/2 as Poland's Jacek Wszola and Canada's Greg Joy beat him.

Mike Boit of Kenya, who didn't compete in the Olympics because his nation pulled out in a political dispute, won the 800 in 1:46.1.

CC delays cable-TV action

Leshar News Bureau

MARTINEZ—Four hundred would-be Cable-Vision customers in unincorporated areas who have been waiting up to a year and a half for hookups will have to wait a little longer.

The county Board of Supervisors Tuesday listened for two hours to the complaints of the would-be customers and the complaints of the television cable companies and decided to refer the whole question of higher underground installation rates to the supervisors' administration and finance committee.

Cable-Vision and Tele-Vue companies had both come to the supervisors asking for higher installation rates.

The county administrator's staff had proposed an increase of $100. Both Michael Kruger representing Cable-Vision and Bill Lilly representing Tele-Vue said the amount was not enough.

Lilly said that the cost of trenching to the property line averaged out to be $140 per customer. The present cost to the customer for installation hookup is $37.50.

County staff members did not dispute his figures.

Previously the housing developers paid for the cost of the trenching, development by the county and the customer paid the $37.50 for hookup. However, now some developers pay and some do not.

Lilly said his company has continued to connect houses and has not denied service to new homeowners. But he said the cost of installation was $177.50 not the $100 plus the $37.50 hookup charge which county staff had recommended.

Kruger said Cable-Vision has not been connecting customers where developers have refused to pay the trenching costs.

However, he admitted that prospective customers were never notified that the reason they were not being connected was because of the dispute over trenching costs.

Kruger apologized to the large gathering of disgruntled prospective customers in the audience from the Danville area for what he said must have been a misunderstanding.

Representatives of homeowners' associations complained that they were always told connection charges would be $37.50. They said however, that the Cable-Vision Co. while talking about a $37.50 hookup charge has not been accepting any orders.

Housing contractors came to the supervisors many months ago asking for relief from the trenching costs.

Cable companies protested, saying that the $37.50 hookup charge, the most they could charge their customer, was not enough.

Supervisors refused to force the contractors to keep paying the trenching costs which would have been added on to the housing bill.

Instead the county staff was asked to review the matter and come up with a proposal.

Besides raising the hookup fee plus trenching to $137.50, the staff said that this charge should not be made to houses already sold in the developments.

Kruger said his company stands to lose $40,000 if the supervisors accept the staff's proposal.

He asked that supervisors allow the cable companies to charge at least $50 to those who had already bought homes.

Kruger said that once the matter of underground installation fees is settled it would take six weeks to connect all those 400 families who have been waiting in the Danville-Walnut Creek areas.

New health planning agency moves step closer to reality

Leshar News Bureau

MARTINEZ—The powerful new health planning agency for Alameda and Contra Costa Counties has moved one step closer to reality.

Contra Costa County supervisors Tuesday approved a compromise version of who will operate the agency.

Three applications were originally submitted to the federal Department of Health Education and Welfare from the two-county area.

Last week, a coordinating committee supported by the now defunct Comprehensive Health Planning Associations of both counties offered to withdraw its application if the supervisors would also agree to some modifications of their application.

The supervisors agreed to change their joint-power application to accept appointments to sub-area councils already made by the coordinating committee.

Supervisors also expressed their intent to provide staff support to sub-area councils and advisory committee.

Supervisor Warren Bogges indicated concern over the costs of the agency to the county. He said an agreement should be worked out with Alameda County so funds from both area are provided on an equitable basis.

Formerly, this county spent $40,000 a year for partial support of the Comprehensive Health Planning Association. The compromise calls for an equal expenditure to support the new agency.

Most of the new agency's money will come from the federal government. Estimates now are that the federal government will provide 25 cents per capita, which means that in the two-county area of Alameda and Contra Costa the amount would be about $400,000.

The compromise was referred to the supervisors' administration and finance committee to work out details of the county's share of financing the agency.

The third applicant, a group of Berkeley-based social workers, declined to support the compromise version.

HEW is expected to decide between the two remaining applications this month.

The new health planning agency will have the power to control all hospital construction and expansion in the two counties.

Home inventory suggested to guard against fire loss

Think quick: How many items of value in your home can you remember?

Most people can't remember even a majority of their home's contents. If your home is hit by fire, thousands of dollars could be lost if you can't provide your insurance company with a complete list of lost items.

A complete home inventory takes only a short amount of time; yet, the list could be invaluable if your home is destroyed by fire or burglarized.

To take a home inventory, systematically go through each room, listing each piece of furniture, clothing, appliances, stereo gear, guns, cameras, etc. As accurately as possible, list the item's name, brand name, model and serial numbers, date of purchase and cost. Keep the list current by adding new purchases and gifts.

If possible, take color pictures of items, especially those of great value or uniqueness.

Make a copy of the inventory list, and put the original in a bank safe deposit box. There, it is safe from fire or theft.

Check to make sure those expensive articles are covered by your insurance policy. Some items, such as cameras, furs or jewelry might require a separate rider to your current policy.

For added protection in the event of theft, borrow an electronic engraving pen from local police and mark your driver's license number on each valuable. This number is kept in permanent files in Sacramento and can easily be traced if lost or stolen items are recovered.

For more information on home inventories, contact Livermore Police at 443-0111; Pleasanton Police at 846-3202; or the Sheriff's department at 829-3881. Engraving pens are available on loan from all the above offices.

Assembly nixes probation bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An attempt to scrap a system of local probation supervision programs for convicted felons was killed by an Assembly committee Wednesday.

State Sen. George Deukmejian said he sponsored his bill after hearing that law enforcement had concluded generally that "the program has been a failure."

During the committee hearing, a 2-1 vote fell three short of the tally needed for passage. And two absent members said later they were also against the bill.

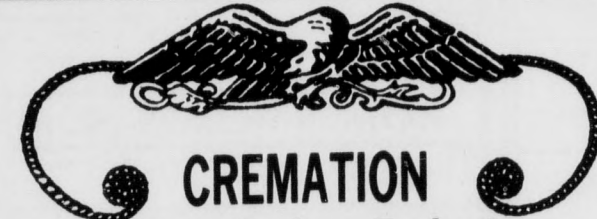

Deukmejian, a Long Beach Republican, said the program pays about $19 million to counties under the program — including up to $4,000 for "each person they don't send to state prison."

But he said the probation subsidy program has provided no better results in the effort to lower the crime rate.

Deukmejian's bill would channel $21 million to cities and counties for grants he said were aimed at catching young offenders before they become hardened to a life of crime.

But committee members wanted to know particulars about the grant program. Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, said, "It's throwing dollars at a problem without knowing exactly what's going to be done."

Trustees okay new teachers in Livermore

LIVERMORE — The first list of newly hired teachers for the fall was approved Tuesday night by Livermore Unified School District trustees.

Besides Les Imel, who is returning to the district after two years and who will be principal of Arroyo Moch School, the new teachers are Maureen Cline, a graduate of San Jose State with two and a half years' experience, to teach social studies and English at Granada High; Lennie Darden, a graduate of Cal State Hayward and UC Berkeley, to teach the Opportunity class at Granada; G. Steven Denny of San Jose State, who will apply his six months' experience to his new job in the Granada High science department; and Robert See, a brand new teacher who will teach social science half time at Livermore High.

Two new resignations were accepted; John J. Sai, a math teacher at Granada High, made his resignation retroactive to June 30, while Larry Maniz, a custodian at Mendenhall Intermediate, quit as of July 30.

In other business, trustees renewed their property and liability insurance in spite of the greatly increased cost of $141,620 and somewhat reduced coverage; took action to relocate two portables at Junction Intermediate School; approved a list of new French and Spanish books to be used at the high schools; and called for bids on air conditioning the libraries of Fifth Street, Michell, Sonoma, Marylin, Portola and Jackson Avenue Schools.

Air control designates smog zones

A new way of designating areas likely to be affected by high air pollution levels will be used during this year's smog season, according to the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

In past years, the district issued smog alerts when oxidant levels were expected to reach or exceed .20 parts per million at a designated geographic location — described in general terms in the past.

Four geographic subdivisions have been adopted for Alameda County with the Livermore Valley area including the Livermore, Amador Valley, Murray, Pleasanton and Sunol Glen school districts.

All designations will be based on school districts.

Other geographic subdivisions in Alameda County are Fremont, Hayward, and San Leandro.

The BAAPCD advisory council will hold a special meeting Wednesday, Aug. 11 at 1:30 p.m. to discuss upper limits for sulfur dioxide emissions for both existing sources and for new sulfur and sulfuric acid plants.

Present regulations call for the establishment of a ground level monitoring system in lieu of meeting the basic 300 ppm. emission limitation.

Benefit car wash planned

LIVERMORE — Get the summer dust washed off your car and send some kids on an educational trip at the same time!

Here's your chance: the "Bicentennial Safari" participants are having a car wash Saturday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Butterfield Texaco station, 1175 Catalina Drive (just off Holmes).

Money raised will help send a group of junior high and high school students to the East Coast for an educational trip to sites of torical interest. Rincon School teacher Bo Hansen is in charge of the venture.

Amador voc ed staffer named to state team

Sandy Sandoval, vocational education coordinator for the Amador Valley Joint High School District, has been asked to serve as a member of the district education review teams which will assist in evaluating vocational education delivery systems in school districts throughout the state.

An employee of the district since August of 1969, Sandoval was originally assigned as a business education teacher at Amador Valley High School.

Sandoval's latest nomination to a voc ed review team will take three or four days of his time. Last year, he was the member of a voc ed review team that examined Carmel's program from Dec. 2-5.

According to Ernest R. Neasham, evaluation consultant for the statewide vocational education unit, the district review has been extensively tested and improved over the past several years and has been approved and authorized by Samuel L. Barrett, California State Director of Vocational Education, as a part of the state's voc ed evaluation process provided for in the California State Plan for Vocational Education.

In noting Sandoval's appointment to Amador Superintendent Bruce Newlin, Neasham said, "We cannot overemphasize the importance of the district review and the principle of self-evaluation which it embodies. It will be used in school districts selected at random. The benefits to participants include training in management and evaluation techniques and the opportunity to compare their own system with those of other schools and organizations.

"The state will benefit both from the composite information generated by the reviews," Neasham stated, "and by the improved personnel skills and programs which will be serving future vocational education students."

Newlin has verified Sandoval's appointment with Neasham.
